

How will the 2020 Census impact Arizona?

The census matters to Arizona and has an impact on our daily lives—the roads we drive on, access to health care, school lunch programs, even our political representation. The census is our once-in-a-decade opportunity to shape the next ten years in Arizona. Census data is used to provide our communities things like:

- > Roads
- > Hospitals
- > Schools
- > Education programs
- > First responders
- > Public transportation
- > Adoption services
- > Services for our children
- > Community programs
- > Highway planning and construction

“Arizona has seen major growth over the last ten years, and we’re on track for more. The 2020 Census is our opportunity to ensure that Arizona resources are distributed in a fair way and we can preserve the outstanding quality of life in our state.”

—Doug Ducey, Governor of Arizona

The 2020 Census matters to Arizona.

"With the growing population in Maricopa County and across Arizona, public safety continues to serve as a critical element of sound economic development. From Arizona's urban areas to our most suburban communities, we are safer when we understand more about who we need to protect. The 2020 Census is an important tool for public safety in the communities we serve. Participation in this census is safe, easy and important."

—Paul Penzone, Sheriff, Maricopa County

"Arizona cities and towns rely on a complete census count to provide the services our residents depend on and plan for our future. Arizonans need to know that the census is safe, easy, and important for our state's future."

—Coral Evans, Mayor, City of Flagstaff

"The 2020 Census will help shape the future of Arizona's schools, and we know that young children and college students are historically undercounted. Arizona's complete count will ensure we receive our fair share of resources for our students and serve the educational needs of every community in our state."

—Kathy Hoffman, Arizona Superintendent of Public Instruction

"Each member of Arizona's 22 tribes counts, living both on and off our tribal lands. It's critical that we come together to ensure that every Native American is counted in the 2020 Census so that we can provide needed health care and education services to our communities."

—Kristine FireThunder, Director, Governor's Office on Tribal Relations

"Arizonans living in rural communities are an important part of Arizona's population and the census helps us determine how to plan where medical clinics, roads, schools and other important infrastructure is needed."

—Billie Orr, Mayor Pro-Tem, City of Prescott

"LGBTQ+ Arizonans are an important part of our state's diversity—being counted is not only our civic duty, but part of shaping the future of our state."

—Neil Giuliano, President & CEO, Greater Phoenix Leadership

"Arizona's business community relies on important information that comes from census results. We're committed to helping achieve a complete count, because it will help shape our business decisions for the next decade."

—Olivia Ainza-Kramer, President, Nogales-Santa Cruz County Chamber of Commerce

"Across all faiths and backgrounds, participation in the census impacts us all. This is our opportunity to support a once-in-a-decade event that will shape the next 10 years of our state."

—Warren H. Stewart, Sr., Senior Pastor, First Institutional Baptist Church
